Have you wondered how books are adapted into films? Join Dr. Casie Hermansson (Pittsburg State University, USA; Fulbright Scholar in Åbo Akademi/ Turun Yliopisto 2014) for a “pop up lecture” on adaptation basics at the PREMIS zoom: <https://aboakademi.zoom.us/j/61634754638> (4pm Wednesday January 27). The presentation is for all student levels; no prior knowledge of the subject needed. Please do read the very short story “Eveline” by James Joyce before the class (available on the internet by searching for the “Eveline” pdf or at:

http://cola.calpoly.edu/~pmarchba/TEXTS/SHORT_STORIES/James_Joyce/1904_Eveline.pdf).

Schedule: a short lecture with powerpoint (20-30 mins) followed by discussion. Open questions at the end, including current daily life in the USA. Expectations: come prepared to have your zoom camera on and participate in discussion! Practice your English in a welcoming environment!

Dr Casie Hermansson is a former Fulbright Scholar who has taught at Åbo Akademi and Ty three times: in Spring 2014, Spring 2017, and Autumn 2019. She is a dual citizen of New Zealand and the United States. At her home university in Pittsburg, Kansas, she teaches English literature and film adaptation. She has published on the Bluebeard fairy tale, and adaptations of children’s and young adult literature to film. She hopes to visit again once global travel resumes!

PREMIS

(Post-graduate Research in English: Multimodal and Interdisciplinary Studies) is a literary and cultural seminar, which focuses on promoting post-graduate research by concentrating on new developments in literature. The seminar appreciates multi-modal, interdisciplinary or multi-cultural input from researchers in related areas.

The PREMIS-seminars are open to all - welcome!
